Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Major, K. 218 By Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart

Notes by Tsukasa Cherkaoui

Who Is Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart?

Born: January 27, 1756 in Salzburg, Austria

Died: December 5, 1791 in Vienna, Austria

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, the Austrian composer and a son of Leopold Mozart, is the most famous composer today. Mozart began to show his musical talent at an early age; he was about three years old when his sister, Nannerl, began to receive keyboard lessons from their father. She used a music book, Notenbuch, which Leopold created to teach performance skills. Wolfgang was delighted by the keyboard and spent endless hours learning it with the aid of his sister's book. Leopold was astonished by how quickly Wolfgang learned the music. His earliest known composition was comprised of two short pieces written in 1761. At the time, he was only five years old. Although Mozart's first instrument was the keyboard, he also showed an interest in violin, especially after receiving a little violin as a gift. Schachtner, a close friend of the Mozarts, recalled Wolfgang's first step as a violinist in his memoir:

We were going to play trios, Papa [Leopold] playing the bass with his viola, Wenzl the first violin, and I was to play the second violin. Wolfgang had asked to be allowed to play the second violin, but Papa refused him this foolish request the least instruction in the violin, and Papa thought he could not possibly play anything. Wolfgang said, "You don't need to have studied in order to play second violin," and when Papa insisted that he should go away and not weep bitterly and stamped off with his little violin. I asked them to let him play with me. Papa eventually said, "Play with Herr Schachtner, but so softly that we can't hear you, or you will have to go." And so it was astonishment that I was quite superfluous. I quietly put my violin down, and looked at your Papa; tears of wonder and comfort ran down his cheeks at this scene.

This event, which took place one evening in January 1763, describes another example of Mozart's astonishing musical talent. Over 250 years later, his gift still amazes us.

Interesting Facts About the Concerto

Mozart composed four violin concertos in Salzburg during the year of 1775. The fourth concerto was composed in October 1775.

- The manuscript of this concerto is held at Jagiellonian Library in Kraków, Poland.
- To whom the work was dedicated is unknown, but both Mozart and Antonio Brunetti, a concertmaster of Count Hieronymus von Colloredo's court orchestra, performed this concerto as a soloist.

Symphony No. 3 ("Organ") in C Minor, Op. 78 By Camille Saint-Saëns

Notes by Tsukasa Cherkaoui

Who Is Camille Saint-Saëns?

Born: October 9, 1835, in Paris, France

Died: December 16, 1921, in Algiers, Algeria

The French composer, pianist, organist, and writer, Camille Saint-Saëns, was considered to be one of the leaders of the French musical renaissance of the 1870s. He was often compared to Mozart both for being a child prodigy and for his craftsmanship. At the age of 13, Saint-Saëns entered the Paris Conservatory and began studying the organ and composition. In 1857, he was nominated for an organist position at the Madeleine and remained there for 20 years. Liszt praised him as the greatest organist in the world. Even after his popularity in France declined, Saint-Saëns was still regarded as the great living composer in England and America. He made the first of many trips to England as early as 1871. In 1906, he made his first visit to America to give lectures and performances. Saint-Saëns' virtuoso career concluded in 1921 when he gave a public performance at the Dieppe Casino.

Interesting Facts About the Symphony

- This symphony was commissioned by the Royal Philharmonia Society of London, and Saint-Saëns dedicated the work to Franz Liszt.
- At the premiere concert on May 19, 1886, at the St. James' Hall in London, Saint-Saëns performed Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto as the soloist and conducted his third symphony.
- In his discussion notes, which were included in the program of the premiere concert, Saint-Saëns explained that having the two-movement structure in his symphony was "to avoid the endless resumptions and repetitions, which more and more tend to disappear from instrumental music under the influence of increasingly developed musical culture."
- Saint-Saëns was also noted for "believing that symphonic works should...be allowed to benefit by the progress of modern instrumentation." The orchestra included piano in place of the harp, and the organ. The prominent use of the organ earned the nickname "Organ Symphony."
- His third symphony was a great achievement. Saint-Saëns said, "I have given all that I had to give. What I have done I shall never do again." It was, indeed, his last symphony and as he never again attempted such large scale works.

Community Support

The Friends of the Conservatory of Music is a volunteer organization formed to promote high quality performance education for exceptionally talented young musicians.

For some students, meeting the costs associated with a world-class conservatory education can be highly challenging. This dedicated group provides financial support for many annual and endowed scholarships. Since its establishment in 2003, the Friends have raised significant funds through annual gifts and special events. The Gingerbread Holiday Concert is chief among them.

Legacy Giving. Instrumental for our future.

Legacy gifts or planned gifts provide important support for the future of the Lynn Conservatory. Your legacy lives on at Lynn University in perpetuity - various options include, but are not limited to, bequests by will, charitable gift annuities and life insurance. And, you can direct your planned gift to benefit a particular studio (piano, violin), scholarship or endowment.

Your contribution to the Conservatory is tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law. For additional information, please contact Lisa Miller at 561-237-7745.
